Gliders and Float Science

Morning Visit to Pegasus Bridge, site of the glider landings by the British Airborne; the Invasion of Normandy by the Allied forces begins.

Afternoon, travel to Arromanches and the D-Day Landing Museum. This quaint seaside town was a bustling seaport within days of the invasion as “floating harbors” were assembled and offloading of vehicles and equipment began, and continued until the end of the war. Remnants of the concrete “Mulberries” are still visible in the distant surf.

Last stop en route to the hotel, the gun battery at Longues sur Mer. Lodging 1KM from Omaha Beach.

Overnight Colleville-sur-Mer.

Day 4 - September 14 (B, D)

Airborne Forces Behind Enemy Lines - Operation Overlord – “No Better Place to Die”

Begin at the D-Day Museum at Utah Beach. Visit the Museum, bookstore, and walk onto the beach. Stop at the Roosevelt Café for lunch and study the hundreds of signatures penned by returning WWII Veterans over the years.

At Brecourt Manor, study the seven sided field and visit the Richard Winters Leadership Memorial. Stop at the church at Angoville au Plain where medics of the 101st treated the wounded, using church pews as makeshift hospital beds, as artillery rained around them.

Afternoon in Ste. Mere-Eglise, view the steeple where paratrooper John Steele dangled helplessly, hoping the retreating Germans would presume him dead. Tour the Airborne Museum which honors the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions.

Finish the day’s explore at the “drop zone” of the 82nd Airborne at La Fiere and the Mederet River. The story is retold at the Iron Mike Statue, honoring the men of the 82nd. Imagine Rommel’s “asparagus” in the surrounding countryside.

Overnight Colleville sur Mer.

Day 5 - September 15 (B, L, D)

The Fury of the Cliffs and Dunes – A Final Resting Place

Steps away from the hotel, tour the Overlord Museum.

Visit Pointe du Hoc where the American Second Ranger Battalion, led by Colonel Earl Rudder, climbed the 100’ cliffs in the early hours of D-Day. Step into abandoned German bunkers still partially buried amidst the bomb craters.

Conclude at the Normandy American Cemetery, where 9,387 of our military dead lie buried and the Walls of the Missing contain 1,557 names of those missing in action, presumed dead. The beautiful bronze statue, “Spirit of American Youth,” rises above the hallowed ground, reminding all of the sacrifice given by so many. Admire the granite portico with etchings of the maps and military narrative.

If you are able, follow the pathway through the dunes, to the sands of Omaha Beach, known as “Bloody Omaha.” Gaze up the dunes at the German gun emplacements and understand the grueling ordeal undertaken by those guiding the landing craft and those who landed on the exposed beachfront. The single day casualties on Omaha Beach from June 6, 1944 are estimated at 2,400. At the Interpretive Center for the personal stories... nearby villagers, German soldiers, and American service personnel from medics to generals. Overnight Colleville sur Mer.

Day 9 - September 19 (B, L) On to Belgium - Northern Flank – The Battle of the Bulge
At the ABMC cemetery, Margraten, many of the casualties of Operation Market-Garden lie buried. Tributes will be abundant across the cemetery.

Visit the site of the Malmedy Massacre and Baugez Crossroads Museum, which explains the savage attack on unarmed US POWs, that occurred in the field just beyond the museum grounds.

Drive the northern flank of “The Bulge,” heading to Bastogne, stop at a small field of “Dragon’s Teeth,” in decay after 75 years. In Bastogne, the town defended by the 101st Airborne Division during the harsh winter of 1944-45, consider dinner at Le Nuts Café. Overnight Bastogne.

Day 10 - September 20 (B, L) The “Hole in the Donut”
Stop at the 101st Museum and imagine a bombing raid as you hunker down in the bomb shelter in the basement.

Out of town, in the Bois Jacques, above the village of Foy, walk through the dense forest and stand beside the shallow foxholes and fighting positions dug into the frozen ground by members of 2nd Battalion of the 506th PIR.

Visit the Mardasson Memorial, the Belgian Memorial erected to honor and commemorate the American troops who fought in the Battle of the Bulge.

AFTERNOON “ON YOUR OWN” BACK IN BASTOGNE - grab lunch. Optionally rejoin the group to tour Bastogne Barracks or stay in the village and have an afternoon “on your own” exploring shops and boutiques in Bastogne. Dinner on your own. Overnight Bastogne.

Day 11 - September 21 (B, L, D) Luxembourg – Southern Flank - The Battle of the Bulge
Tour the Southern flank of the Bulge. As US troops gained ground in late 1944, the savory scent of their Thanksgiving dinner drifted down the slopes of the “Skyline Drive” to the valley floor, to the cold and desperate German Army, “dining” on canned fish and crackers.

Visit the amazing collection at the National Military Museum of Luxembourg in Diekirch.

Conclude the day paying respects at The American Cemetery at Hamme, Luxembourg. Many who died in the fighting in the Battle of the Bulge are buried here, including E-Company’s Warren “Skip” Muck and Alex Penkala who were killed in their foxhole, a scene in the “Band of Brothers” episode “The Breaking Point.” Although he perished in an automobile accident, Lt. General George S. Patton lies buried here with his men. Overnight Trier.

Three chapels – Protestant, Catholic and Jewish – now stand at the end of the “yard” in memory of those who perished.
